Sticky because /new is flooded with this.

The server that was banned was not officially affiliated with us, and our server remains up.

When Discord bans a server, it normally also bans all members (regardless of whether or not the individuals did anything more than join the server), and that appears to have happened here.

We have known for years that Discord is a typical leftist company. No surprise.

We will also continue to explore self-hosted alternatives to our Discord server (which, again, remains up at this time).

Open to suggestions. Looking for something that is proven to scale to thousands of concurrent users, and preferably a group/guild/server system like Discord has (versus Slack, where it's just one group)

I was an admin in the group. Got banned myself. I've had that account for years. Damn.

Edit: for anyone trying to reconnect with our group follow the instruction here: <https://kekpe.pe/i/5fe0389a2de6c.png>

They have had this back up plan in place for a few weeks. Note: the advanced step is the first thing you do before creating an account or logging in.

See you soon PEDES!

Why Matrix?

1. It's open source. It isn't controlled by a single company that can be pressured by alphabet agencies or foreign countries.
2. It's distributed. There isn't a single point of failure.
3. It's encrypted.

How to join:

1. Visit and make an account <https://app.element.io/#register>
2. When creating your account, choose "advanced" and use the homeserver URL <https://matrix.donaldsarmy.us>

Keep daily backups of the shared files you've worked on.

That would be a very bad idea, unfortunately. It's not secure and centrally controlled by a party that could view your messages if they wanted to.

Which isn't to say it's a bad project at all, it's just clearly meant to be used for nostalgia and not regular use.

Use Telegram NOT VK.com - VK is fully controlled by Putin's regime, and he will betray any organization to the US Deep State if it suits his own goals. He is not worth the trust unless you have no other choice (ex: Snowden).

Telegram was made by a person that originally made VK and had it stolen by the regime. It is a much better service with actual encryption and servers much more secure against governments.

It's not. Being afraid to speak the truth is the issue.

The left isn't afraid to speak their mind.

Look at the stupid shit that comes out of their mouth nonstop.

"Hey, I want to dress up in drag and go sing to kids as they sit on my lap at the library"

20 years ago, that'd get you shot.

Now? It's perfectly acceptable.

You know why?

Because they keep pushing their bullshit, nonstop, regardless of consequences.

They normalize their positions by repeating them out loud, continually.

On the other hand, the right loses ground year after year, because "it isn't the right time", "how would that look?", "yikes, but what would the media say?" and so on.

These people aren't our friends. They want us dead.

If we keep backing up we're going to find ourselves lined up against a wall.

▲ 1 ▼

= tchouk 1 point 54 minutes ago +1 / -0

It isn't them simply pushing the positions.

It is them taking over our culture, media, education and communication, including language itself. That is the reason people with different opinions are asking themselves "how would that look".

'Pushing their bullshit nonstop' is not at all how this was achieved. No progressive started with "Hey, I want to dress up in drag and go sing to kids as they sit on my lap at the library". It started as "Hey, I think everyone should get equal treatment"

Not being afraid to go against the cultural progressive standard is definitely the start of reversing this, but it doesn't start with "hey, let's kill people by throwing them out of helicopters". It starts with "hey, maybe we should let parents choose the public school their children go to" and "hey, maybe we should be treating people with mental illness instead of playing along with their delusions".

And then it should end there and not go to helicopters.

Why Matrix?

1. It's open source. It isn't controlled by a single company that can be pressured by alphabet agencies or foreign countries.
2. It's distributed. There isn't a single point of failure.
3. It's encrypted.

How to join:

1. Visit and make an account <https://app.element.io/#register>
2. When creating your account, choose "advanced" and use the homeserver URL <https://matrix.donaldsarmy.us>

Keep daily backups of the shared files you've worked on.

Anything centralized and owned by a company is not safe. They can be pressured. Imagine if the same thing were to happen right before the rally. We need a better option.

Do it old school. Back a few years ago we used something called IRC, and I was on there for years... Then everything went centralized with discord, slack, reddit, facebook, twitter, etc.

It may be time to go back to IRC. At the very least, I wish people would learn to use it, it's not really much harder than discord. You can even run your own server if necessary.

I've been on irc since forever too. But it isn't persistent like discord. If you aren't online you don't receive the message, no good cellphone clients. And if you run your own server prepare to get ddos'd. I'd consider it but I'm not sold on it.

I actually like the lack of persistence to some degree -- persistence on these platforms means that something you said years ago can still be indexed and searched, and quoted years later. Sometimes I like to just have a conversation, and not think that it is being recorded.

That being said, those are other very good points. We need some better technology, IRC was invented in the 80's and does have a lot of issues just due to age.

I doubt your claim.

If you've been on IRC forever, you know we use bots for persistence. Such as X and W on Undernet and whatever it's called on Freenode.

And all you have to do is send a ping to stay connected.

Also there are Cloud IRC servers now where you can loiter the whole time.

There is already a Matrix server that the admins were using as a backup. Anyone who joined the discord was told to screenshot the backup instructions. Everyone who paid attention is getting invited to the matrix server right now as we speak.

No it works fine.

For those having trouble, I'd recommend trying a different browser, going to the URL <https://app.element.io/#register> and then even before entering anything hit 'advanced / other' on the far right, and entering this server: <https://matrix.donaldsarmy.us> - THEN put in your username and password.

Once in you should see a General channel and some traffic. Hit the plus sign next to 'rooms', select Find Rooms (IIRC) and then join your state-specific room.

I hear there's a lot of alternatives right now. Just keep looking through these sorts of threads and you should be able to find them. I'm planning on just heading there and winging it. I survived freezing my ass off sleeping in an unheated hole in Afghanistan, I'll probably survive this as well.

Are you really that surprised, though? The discord app was own, ran and created by known leftists who are also apparently furies.

Start looking into alternatives to discord! I don't know of many except for Signal and Riot. Neither is quite up to par as discord is though, so they still need some time to mature.

If anyone knows a better suggestion, I am all up for it since I am now ready to abandon and move on from Discord, as I did with skype before it and yahoo messenger before THAT.

I wish that cryptocat was still a thing, only heard of it because of Edward Snowden.

I guess I can take the time to learn it, though. In general I prefer ones with the features of Discord.

There's hundreds of IRC clients. If you found it difficult, it's probably because you were using a poor client.

Okay choosing the right client might be difficult too, but finding one that suits your needs shouldn't be hard if you put in the effort. You only need to do so once.

And yet Discord thinks they have a RIGHT to stop you. It is not hard to see who is wrong. They can strip you of your voice that is a natural right? You need to understand that they are violating basic natural rights. It is crap because the natural right is not being protected here...and it should be. Thats whats crap.

And I am gonna go a bit further. Any laws that goes against these natural rights should be voided. Like the laws that says companies have a right to strip you of your voice. It goes against the natural right to your voice...which makes it unlawful.

Correct! But nothing in the constitution stops a private group from stopping your voice. 1A is gov't limiting. I will fight against private groups that do it because morally it is wrong but that doesn't mean it is illegal. We need to pay for what we want. Free isn't free for services

Corporations are not above basic natural rights. Constitutional rights are basic natural rights. They were not given by Gov or even man. They are basic natural rights that nobody from nowhere, no group, no institution on the face of this great earth can lord over and stand over top of. So...again...Discord and all these corporations are stripping you, me, and everyone else of these basic natural rights. The right to speak. They do not own your voice. They do not have rights to your voice. It is yours. You may speak them and type them in various forums across this earth...but it is yours by natural right and shall not be silenced.

What is this Discord crap. I signed up this morning and they just sent me an email saying I was thrown out for violating rules, sending threats to others, participated in targeted harrasment, incited violence or involved in server dedicated to these behaviors....🤔

I love how the first three reasons all allege specific individual behavior, but juuust in case we can't hook you, here comes good ol' guilt by association.

Also got banned. I put in an appeal but it wouldn't shock me if their worthless furry loaded "Trust and Safety" team denies it.

Don't worry about it if you don't use discord for anything else. If you do just make a new email address and make a new discord account.

Don't worry; they'll ban this but actual transgender grooming channels? Nope. Channels where they literally share mutilating and torturing animals for sexual purposes? Good luck!

You guys should be using Keybase, which encrypts communication and functions similar to discord/slack/whatever else.

It's much more secure.

Keybase is owned by Zoom.

Discord IS a psy-op. It has been since day 1.

The intelligence community hates ventrilo, teamspeak, and such. They can't track or tap them. Look at their early days. Their monetization strategy was nonexistent
